

Taraney's Guide to Austin, Texas.

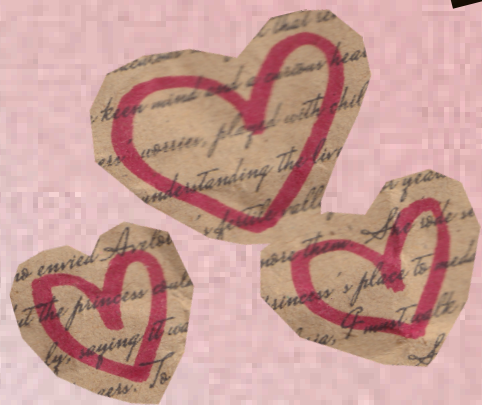

*i love you
so much.*

Austin, Texas is my home
It's the wonderful place that I am choosing to raise my family. After living in Texas for the last 10 years,
I know that this city and it's hills
have my heart and soul.

So, as I gift you this guide, know that I am sharing with you the gems
that serve me wildly as an Austin
girlie.

From the nature hikes, cafes and dinner spots ~ these are the places
my soul sisters and I frequent because we love them so much.

Austin is a city that exudes
efflorescence.

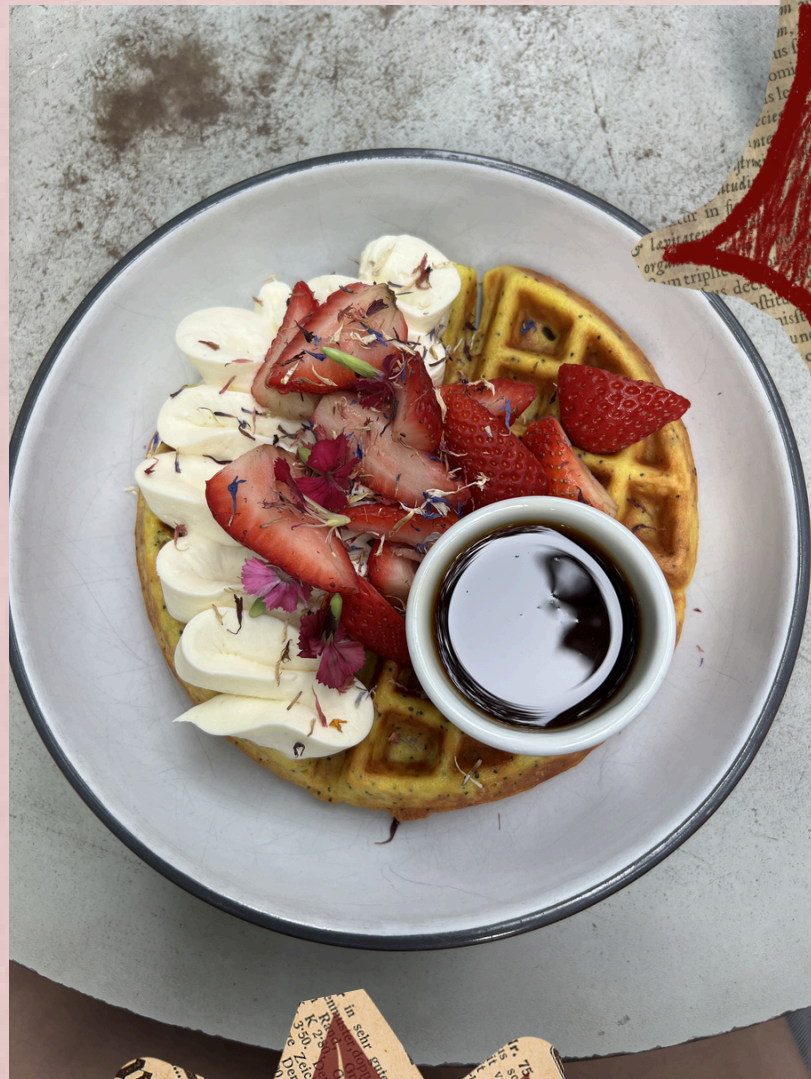

It's a city that asks you to slow down, stay for awhile, and smile simply because you can. The movement is always laced with folk hymns, the beat of a drum, and the so so sacred limestone that rests beneath us.

Aquifers run from the cities edge deep into the Hill Country. Honey Calcite, Fluorite, and Quartz dance amongst the many layers of rock, stone, and soil.

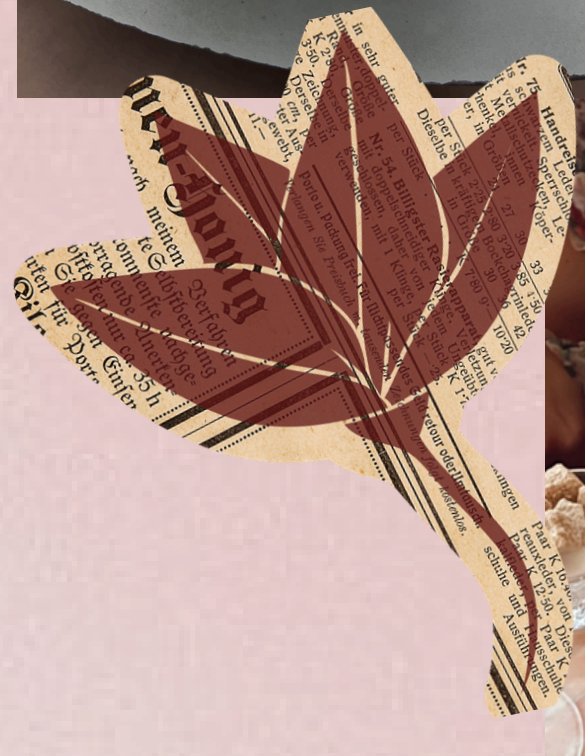

So, no matter the reason you feel called to visit our neon lit bat city, home of Barton springs and cherry limeade, stay awhile~

Austin, Texas is a place that welcomes you to pray and play. If you open yourself to this land, she will open you.
